

DAISY GRAHAM | digraham@mta.ca

Daisy Graham (any/all) is an emerging artist making peace with space, sound, noise, and movement in digital and analog iterations. They work intermittently between craft practices, relational performance, and ambient ephemera, seeking connections to social and ecological organisms. Daisy hails from Niitsitapi, Treaty 7 territory of the Piikani, Kainai, and Siksika, known as Southern Alberta; and learns in Kjipuktuk, the unceded and ancestral homelands of the Mi'kmaq. Land, environs, their history, and the reciprocity we owe to it prove insistent on every version of these themes.
